FIRE IN THE MINDS OF MEN

by James H. Billington

"James Billington has a sensitivity not just to ideas but to the symbolic and emotive forms of their expression which makes his history of the European revolutionary tradition far richer than anything I have read before."—William McNeill, Eastman Professor, Oxford University; Editor, Journal of Modern History

"There isn't a dull page."—John Leonard, New York Times

"James Billington is a historian who unites a creative imagination with unquenchable curiosity and solid erudition, and who has decided to take seriously the notion that political revolution is the secular religion of our time. . . . His book is certain to become a classic."—Joseph Frank, author of Dostoevsky: The Seeds of Revolt, 1821-49

"Fascinating, and I can only admire its enormous coverage. I marvel at how the author has managed to bring off such a gigantic enterprise. It keeps clear the distinction between a history of 'faith' and a history of a real revolution."—Robert Palmer, Professor Emeritus, Yale University; author, The Age of the Democratic Revolution

JAMES H. BILLINGTON is director of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, in Washington, D.C. He is the author of The Icon and the Axe.
